Quarterly CityLinks Activities

I'm delighted to provide you all with an update about our CityLinks activities. From conferences to workshops to planning year four projects, the CityLinks team has been very busy.

In October, the CityLinks team participated in the 6th Annual Southeast Florida Regional Climate Leadership Summit. As part of a panel discussing international collaboration around climate change, CityLinks Program Manager Jessica Cho shared how CityLinks was taking the Southeast Florida Regional Climate Compact's message and design global through CityLinks partnership programs.

Later in the month, the CityLinks team brought a global perspective to AFI's 2014 BIG Ideas Conference through ICMA member, Susanne Torriente. Torriente sat on an author's panel and presented a white paper entitled Local Governments Transcending Their Borders to Fight Climate Change. Torriente worked closely with the CityLinks team during the Durban – Southeast Florida Climate Change Partnership.

In November, CityLinks returned to Dar es Salaam to facilitate a local government capacity building workshop in conjunction with the Durban Adaptation Charter and the Association of Local Authorities of Tanzania. Workshop participants included directors, mayors, and chairpersons from Tanzania's 168 local governments, as well as officials from other local governments in South Africa and Ghana. The workshop took place as part of the Durban-Dar es Salaam Climate Change Partnership.

December was dedicated to getting year four of the program up and running. You can get a sneak peek of of the activities in the works here.
